Lean Government refers to the application of lean production principles and methods to both identify and then implement the most efficient, value added way to provide government services. Government agencies have found that when Lean is implemented, they see an improved understanding of how their own processes work, that it facilitates the quick identification and implementation of improvements and that it builds a culture of continuous improvement. Lean for government focuses on governing and s

Lean government - Wikipedia

Lean Government. Whilst many government functions around the world are now adopting Lean methods to great effect, many more remain resistant to Lean. This inertia is based on an entrenched misconception that Lean processes only apply to the manufacturing sector. For this reason, both local and national government represent fertile ground for Lean techniques to make significant contributions, improving processes, saving costs and, above all, enhancing the services they offer to their citizens.
