Creative Industries — Richard E. Caves | Harvard ...

In his book 'Creative Industries: Contracts Between Art and Commerce', the American economist Richard Caves argues that creative enterprises and industries are set aside from normal businesses and sectors by the potentially infinite variety of the product - be it a film, a novel, a play and so on - together with the uniqueness of each individual creative work or experience.

Creativity - Arts news, articles, jobs & events

The cultural and creative industries refer to those parts of the modern economy where culture is produced and distributed through industrial means, applying the creativity of individuals and groups to the generation of original cultural product, which may have commercial value either through direct sale to consumers or as intellectual property.
