"Performance Studies" gained academic prominence in departments of theater in the 1980s, then became increasingly influential in other fields. Richard Schechner, one of the founding figures of performances studies in the US, says on p. 1 of his introductory book, "anything and everything can be studied 'as' performance."

There is very limited evidence about sports participation in relation to religion and belief in Scotland. Due to the small proportion of people in Scotland identifying with non-Christian religions, it is not possible to undertake robust analysis of trends in relation to participation in sports by religion.

Religion/ belief and sport

Religion is one which imparts culture to most of the societies. This helps them live within a set of rules unlike the animals. People tend to follow rules for marriage, work, business, death and other aspects of life. This leads to a systematic behavior by all the people in the society.
