The Most Human Human is a provocative, exuberant, and profound exploration of the ways in which computers are reshaping our ideas of what it means to be human. For the first time in history, we are interacting with computers so sophisticated that we think they're human beings. This is a remarkable feat of human ingenuity, but what does it say about our humanity?

The Most Human Human | Brian Christian

Brian Christian's The Most Human Human: What Artificial Intelligence Teaches Us About Being Alive is a 2012 nonfiction book about Christian's personal journey to learn what separates a human from a machine. In an age of ever-more-advanced AI, he explores what computers are and are not capable of, embarking on a quest to win the title of the "Most Human Human" in the annual Loebner Prize competition.

The Most Human Human follows the author, Brian Christian, as he enters the annual Turing Test competition and tries to prove to the judges that he's not a robot. I love this book because it interrogates the question of what it means to be human in some extraordinarily unexpected ways. The chapter that draws connections between chess and dating is a personal favorite and has stuck with me for years.
