You will be introduced to the three “pillars” of EW: Electronic Attack (EA) systems, Electronic Protection (EP) techniques, and Electronic Support (ES). An EW engagement model will be developed to illustrate the interaction between radar and jamming signals and the impact in radar detection and tracking. In addition, several EA techniques will be introduced and modeled, and the effects of radar performance will be explored.

Modeling & Simulation. As a core research and development competency,

SRC models and simulates information for prototype design, development and scientific research. We develop sophisticated models that accurately reflect the design and details of a system. Applying tools such as MATLAB®, SIMULINK and OpNet, we provide support for live simulation, virtual simulation and constructive modeling or simulation.
