Systems Testing and Cutover Plan Requirements

The benefit of having a Communications Plan as part of the Cutover Plan document, is that it gives easy visibility on who the stakeholders are, at what point in time should they be expecting a communication and whom to contact in case any information / escalation is needed. It is always better to over-communicate than to under-communicate.

Managing Project

Cutovers Effectively - MCFTech

Cutover strategy depends upon how the organizations design their data load strategies. Normally, you decide the sequence of Data loads for Configuration settings, Master data, Transaction data which follows whom and then you make a copy of the system as a Production system a day before and after checking the successful data loads, you go-live 100% or partial again depending upon organizational setup and policies.
