History - literary criticism

Literary criticism is the study, evaluation, and interpretation of literature. Modern literary criticism is often influenced by literary theory, which is the philosophical discussion of literature's goals and methods. Though the two activities are closely related, literary critics are not always, and have not always been, theorists. Whether or not literary criticism should be considered a separate field of inquiry from literary theory, or conversely from book reviewing, is a matter of some contr

Literary criticism - Wikipedia

Literary criticism of the twentieth century differed in its approach by focusing on the literary structure, authorial purpose, and reader's response to the text through methods such as rhetorical criticism, canonical criticism, and narrative criticism. These original methods of biblical criticism permanently changed perception of the Bible, and in the process, also changed itself.

Biblical criticism - Wikipedia

Modernism was an earlier aesthetic movement which was in vogue in the early decades of the twentieth century. It has often been said that Postmodernism is at once a continuation of and a break away from the Modernist stance. Postmodernism shares many of the features of Modernism. Both schools reject the rigid boundaries between high and low art.
