He Is Not Silent Preaching

"Preaching is therefore always a matter of life and death" (63).
 God speaks to His people through the public proclamation of His Word. God is not silent. He is not distant. He is not unknowable.

 We can hear Him, draw near to Him, and know Him through the Bible.

He is not Silent Mohler's initial critique of the state of preaching is poignant, not biting. When pressing the need to preach Scripture in light of its overarching themes, he offers that "Taken out of its context, and without clear attention to biblical theology, preaching becomes a series of disconnected talks on the disconnected texts.
