Non Destructive Assessment Of Concrete

Non Destructive Testing of Concrete (NDT) of concrete is more common in the construction industry due to the requirement of verification of different parameters of hardened concrete. Depending on the type of test, there is various equipment to be used as per its specification.

13 Non Destructive Testing of Concrete - Structural Guide

Rebound hammer test is one of the non-destructive concrete tests for the evaluation of the structure strength. Rebound hammer is known as Schmidt's Hammer. It is also known as Swiss Hammer because it is invented by Ernst Schmidt, a Swiss Engineer. Rebound hammer test is conducted to assess the relative compressive strength of concrete.

Non-destructive Concrete Tests (NDT) for Structure Strength

Non-destructive tests of concrete is a method to obtain the compressive strength and other properties of concrete from the existing structures. This test provides immediate results and actual strength and properties of concrete structure. The standard method of evaluating the quality of concrete in buildings or structures is to test specimens cast simultaneously for compressive, flexural and tensile strengths.

Non-Destructive Tests on Concrete - Methods, Uses

Non-destructive testing methods are used to evaluate concrete properties by assessing the strength and other properties such as corrosion of reinforcement, permeability, cracking, and void structure. This type of testing is important for the evaluation of both new and old structures.

Non-destructive test methods for structural condition assessment can be used to evaluate the structural integrity and locate potential defects in structures. Ultrasonic testing of concrete provides a cost-effective approach to evaluating concrete material, and crack depth in concrete structures. Ultrasonic Pulse Velocity (UPV) can be used to evaluate the quality of concrete material, as well as studying the crack depth.
