You can't go home again. It's an old sentiment, which expresses the reality that things change and so do we. We can never go back to the way things were. You can't go home again, because it never will be the same.

Why you can't go home again? It's never the same

How can violence-displaced people already exceed World War II's total by almost 20 million (without even counting the nearly five million more added in the first half of 2020)? The answer: these days, you can't go home again. In May 1945, the war in Europe came to an end. By the beginning of September, the war in the Pacific was over, too.
