The scale of the debacle of 2008 was unmatched by anything since at least 1825 in the UK, whose banking system had survived the New York panic of 1907, and the turmoil of the 1930s fairly unscathed. Only the disruption of 1914 had come close to undermining the banking system and the disruption was not caused by anything internal to the banks but by the exigencies of war.

British Financial Crises Since 1825 - Google Books

The Panic of 1825 was a stock market crash that started in the Bank of England, arising in part out of speculative investments in Latin America, including an imaginary country: Poyais. The crisis was felt most acutely in Britain, where it led to the closure of six London and sixty country banks in England. It was also manifest in the markets of Europe, Latin America and the United States. An infusion of gold reserves from the Banque de France saved the Bank of England from complete collapse. The
