Language and Method ...

The main difference between structured and object oriented programming is that structured programming allows developing a program using a set of modules or functions, while object oriented programming allows constructing a program using a set of objects and their interactions. A computer program is a set of instructions that instruct the CPU to perform a defined task.

What is the Difference Between Structured and Object ...

One of which is Structured Object-Oriented Formal Language (SOFL). The analysis and formation of the design and implementation of SOFL are carried out as a solution to the problem. The application of SOFL is divided into three parts according to SOFL rules, namely informal specification, semi-formal specification, and formal specification.

Structured Object-Oriented Formal Language and Method ...

Probably the most commercially important recent object-oriented languages are Java, developed by Sun Microsystems, as well as C# and Visual Basic.NET (VB.NET), both designed for Microsoft's .NET platform. Each of these two frameworks shows, in its own way, the benefit of using OOP by creating an abstraction from implementation.
