The first example of the use of the phrase that I can find in print is in Samuel Fallows' The Progressive Dictionary of the English Language, 1835. In his entry for the phrase 'to the nines' Fallows gives the example 'dressed up to the nines' and suggests that it "may perhaps" be derived from 'to thine eynes' - to the eyes .

So in the end, "dressed to the nines" is most likely simply an offshoot of the previous "to the nines"
expression, more or less meaning "perfect"
or "to perfection."
Where "to the nines"
came from exactly is a bit of a mystery. The
"Nine Muses" origin
theory seems to have the strongest case. But that doesn't necessarily mean it's correct as the evidence is still scant.

Where The Expression "Dressed to the Nines" Came From

The WHY is the purpose, cause or belief that drives every organization and every person's individual
career. The whole
concept of WHY is
grounded in the tenets
of the biology of human decision making.

The remainder when a number has been divided by 9 is the same as the sum of the digits (or, when that sum gives ...
