Your HC should have came with a hose that you would connect into the back of the HC then to a vac line on the bike. I connected mine to a hose on the top left side near the front FI sensor. cut the line then put your t-connector in and hook up the hose. pretty easy once you figure out your vac line. I have some pictures of my line below.

Pro-R Hypercharger™ | Air Cleaners | Performance | Kuryakyn
A hypercharger is a side-mounted intake component with an opening facing in the direction of travel. When a motorcycle is in motion, the hypercharger capitalizes on the dynamic pressure of air being driven into it to create heightened pressure on the intake side of the engine. The result is an increase in power for the bike.
