The Race Poem

The Race. Attributed to Dr. D.H. “Dee” Groberg. Whenever I start to hang my head in front of failure’s face, my downward fall is broken by the memory of a race. A children’s race, young boys, young men; how I remember well, excitement sure, but also fear, it wasn’t hard to tell.

Poem: The Race

How does suggesting race as a story that poems can tell influence what this poem looks or sounds like on the page? Think about conversational language, line breaks, and diction. Chart Alexander's use of racially inflected language; think about allusions and theoretical language for talking about race, as well as descriptive words.

The Race. "Quit, give up, you're beaten". They shout at you and plead. "There's just too much against you. This time you can't succeed". And as I start to hang my head. In front of failures face. My downward fall is broken by. The memory of a race.

'The Race' describes my first season on the road racing circuit. Demonstrating the mixed emotions, feelings, pain and triumph associated with my first win. Cycling is a sport where races are played out moment by moment, no one is ever sure of the result until you cross the line.

'The Race' Poem

Poem: The Race by D.H. (Dee) Groberg. I like the poem "The Race" by D. H. Groberg because it is so very applicable to all aspects of life, including mission preparation and mission life. We all fall down in the race of life: we make mistakes, and we fall into sin and error. But we all have a Father in Heaven cheering us on, encouraging us, and helping us to get up each time we fall.

The Race Poem

The time you won your town the race.
We chaired you through the market-place;
Man and boy stood cheering by,
And home we brought you shoulder-high.
To-day, the road all runners come,
Shoulder-high we bring you home, And set you at your threshold down,
Townsmen of a stiller town. Smart lad, to slip betimes away.

A Shropshire Lad 19: The time you won your town the race

Humanity may be its own biggest threat,
But the human race is not gone yet.
There are those who will never give in,
And be so influenced by all of this sin. If you search and follow your heart,
There's a chance we can make a new start. The world can be a much better place, If we can all unite as one human race.
