Employability skills need to be a school wide focus. They are difficult to teach in a single, discrete lesson, or even in a lesson series. Employability skills are best taught when they are a natural inclusion in everything which goes on in a school. Try listing the employability skills in a framework or checklist, then identifying areas of the curriculum where each skill can be focussed on explicitly for an extended period.

The term teaching method refers to the general principles, pedagogy and management strategies used for classroom instruction. Your choice of teaching method depends on what fits you — your educational philosophy, classroom demographic, subject area (s) and school mission statement. Teaching theories can be organized into four categories based on two major parameters: a teacher-centered approach versus a student-centered approach, and high-tech material use versus low-tech material use.
