When playing a solo arrangement, the melody should be the highest note sounding on your ukulele. Since the highest note of a chord is what a human ear hears most prominently, you can float the melody above the rest of the notes to make it stick out. If you bury your melody on the low end of a chord, your listeners will have a hard time picking it out of the mix. You will know it’s there, but it needs to be blatantly obvious for the listener.
