Reviewed in the United States on September 25, 2014. This is a groundbreaking study of the language of grace and gratitude in the Greco-Roman world, studied through the lens of the language of the ubiquitous inscriptions honoring benefactors. After reviewing over fifty such inscriptions and analyzing the manifestations of the ethos of reciprocity in them (the depiction of the benefactor and his or her gifts, the proclamation of the virtues of the same, the response on the part of the ...
