Resettling the Range explores aspects of the history of one of the northwestern most natural grasslands in North America, the Cariboo-Chilcotin region of British Columbia. "This book," John Thistle explains, "is a lot about the choices some early British Columbians made when faced with complicated environmental problems that were also complicated social problems" (p. 8).

Resettling the Range: Animals, Ecologies, and Human ...

Resettling the Range explores the ecology and history of the grasslands and the people who lived there by looking closely at these eradication efforts. In the process, the author uncovers in claims of "range improvement" and "rational land use" more complicated stories of dispossession and marginalization.
