Games Without Frontiers
"Games Without Frontiers" is a song written and recorded by English rock musician Peter Gabriel. It was released on his 1980 self-titled solo album, where it included backing vocals by Kate Bush. The song's lyrics are interpreted as a commentary on war and international diplomacy being like children's games. The video includes film clips of Olympic events and scenes from the 1951 educational film Duck and Cover, which used a cartoon turtle to instruct US schoolchildren on what to do in case of n

A lot of artists in the '80s gave us lyrics that kept us guessing what they meant. In terms of "Games Without Frontiers," Gabriel also left us wondering what those lyrics actually were. Released in 1980 on Gabriel's third solo album, which was self-titled like the first two but can be distinguished by Peter's melting face on the cover, "Games Without Frontiers" came upon us at a time when song lyrics weren't there for the taking on the internet.

Behind the Song: Peter Gabriel, 'Games Without Frontiers ...

The lyric repeated at the beginning and end is "Jeux Sans Frontieres," which is French for "Games Without Frontiers."It is frequently misheard as "She's So Popular." This song is about the childish antics of adults, which is especially prevalent when their countries are competing in the Olympics.

Games Without Frontiers by Peter Gabriel - Songfacts
Jeux sans frontières ("Games Without Borders" in French) was a Europe -wide television game show, based on the French programme Intervilles which was first broadcast in 1962. In its original conception, it was broadcast from 1965 to 1999 under the auspices of the European Broadcasting Union (EBU), which owned the format.

Games Without Frontiers seeks to interrogate this perspective by forcing us to think about what we mean when we say 'football'. Along the way, it skewers media cliches about footballers and fans, considers the sport's implications for radical politics and aesthetics, and situates the 'working-man's game' in relation to twenty-first century discussions of political authenticity.

Games Without Frontiers was the first single to be taken from Peter's third solo album and was released in February 1980, three months before the album. The song was written by Peter, produced by Steve Lillywhite, engineered by Hugh Padgham and recorded at Ashcombe House near Bath, using the Manor Mobile, and at The Townhouse in London.
