Transboundary Water Cooperation In Europe

In Transboundary Water Cooperation in Europe, Götz Reichert analyzes the multidimensional regime for the protection and management of European transboundary freshwater resources that is composed of international water law, the water law of the European Union, and domestic water legislation. Accordingly, qualitative and quantitative aspects regarding surface waters and groundwater are to be managed in an integrated manner to achieve “good water status” of rivers, lakes and aquifers.

40 percent of the world's population lives in one of the 275 transboundary river basins. Transboundary waters account for 60 percent of the world's freshwater flows. Cooperation for the management of shared water resources is therefore crucial for economic development, peace and environmental protection as well as for the achievement of the SDGs. It is even more crucial now, when the COVID-19 pandemic showed the absolute necessity to provide safe and sufficient water and adequate ...
