The externalizing spectrum incorporates a variety of disinhibited or externally focused behavioral symptoms, including aggression, conduct problems, delinquent behavior, oppositionality, hyperactivity, and attention problems, whereas the internalizing spectrum includes a variety of overinhibited or internally focused symptoms, including anxiety, fear, sadness/depression, social withdrawal, and somatic complaints.

The dynamics of internalizing and externalizing ...

Due to the quiet nature of internalizing symptoms, children may not receive treatment as quickly as those with more disruptive or externalizing symptoms. In fact, because they are often disruptive and noticeable to others around them, externalizing symptoms in children have received quite a bit more attention and research than those of internalizing symptoms, but that is starting to change.

Internalizing Behaviors and Depression in Children

Internalizing means keeping your feelings or issues inside and not sharing your concerns with others.

Internalizing is a symptom of several mental health disorders, but is frequently seen in borderline personality disorder (BPD), an illness characterized by extreme mood swings, erratic changes in self-image and behavior, and impulsivity.

Internalizing and Borderline Personality Disorder

Individuals with autism spectrum disorder (ASD) experience higher rates of psychopathology than their typically developing peers or peers with other intellectual or developmental disabilities. Little is known about the developmental course of psychiatric symptoms such as internalizing and externalizing behaviors in this population.
