All Japanese adjectives end with the hiragana い or う if they are in the non-past form. An adjective consists of a stem and a suffix as verbs do, and the stem never changes while suffixes can change. The final い or う in the non-past form of an adjective is the suffix and the rest is the stem. Please note that the suffix for the non-past form of verbs is る, and that of adjectives is い or う.
