Ok, so I may have said that many of today's proclaimed social businesses, aren't social and I stand by that assertion 100%. Having said that, the quest for social business isn't unattainable, but it does take work to achieve. Before I jump into the constructs for a successful social business, let's just take a quick crash course as to why a business wants to be social.

In psychology, meaning-making is the process of how people construe, understand, or make sense of life events, relationships, and the self. The term is widely used in constructivist approaches to counseling psychology and psychotherapy, especially during bereavement in which people attribute some sort of meaning to an experienced death or loss.
