Interpretive Interactionism Applied Social Research

"Interpretive Interactionism argues strongly for a new approach to qualitative research methods. Writing primarily for established practitioners and advanced graduate students, Denzin seeks to fuse influences of symbolic interactionist, hermeneutical, feminist, post-modern, and critical-biographical thought into his personal approach to research, which he calls interpretive interactionism.

Interpretive Interactionism (Applied Social Research Methods)

For Denzin, interpretive interactionism, is clearly part of both the more recent 'explosion' in the 'field of qualitative research' and the historic 'reformist movement' that began in the 1970s. Denzin, interestingly, intellectually grounds his project with reference to C. Wright Mills (1959), The Sociological Imagination. He states:

Interpretive Interactionism | SAGE Publications Ltd

Interpretive Interactionism is probably intended to give a methodological program for applied social science, based on a synthesis of symbolic interactionism, hermeneutics and ethnography. The book also takes up examples from, and shares a good deal of its basic assumptions, with feminist research, as far as epistemology is concerned.
