When The Fires Burn High
If it is high, fuels will absorb moisture from the air, making ignition more difficult. Wind: This is a major factor in determining fire spread. Wind affects the rate of oxygen supply to the burning fuel (controlling combustion) and it tilts the flame forward so that unburned fuel receives energy by radiation and convection at an increased speed.

When you burn fuel in your open fire it is important to use a fire guard to protect yourself and your home from sparks. A solid fuel fire can often spit sparks and embers out of the opening. At the Fireside Shop we offer a large selection of spark guards and fire guards to help protect you and your home. Our fireguards are built using fine mesh and serve the purpose of stopping sparks and embers leaving the fire chamber which could otherwise start a fire.
