mechanical fitting and metal machining. A fitter fits and assembles parts and sub-assemblies made from metal and other materials to make production machinery and other equipment. Their work generally can be divided into three areas: marking out work to be done, assembling and installing machine components, and maintaining and repairing them.

Machining is any of various processes in which a piece of raw material is cut into a desired final shape and size by a controlled material-removal process. The processes that have this common theme, controlled material removal, are today collectively known as subtractive manufacturing, in distinction from processes of controlled material addition, which are known as additive manufacturing.
