All started when a ham friend took a JRC JST-145 to my shop to add some parts from a 'similar' parts rig he had (which turned out to be a JST-245). Parts were no less than the Auto Tuner circuits (three PCBs and some cabling), as it was an option on the JST-145 but standard on the JST-245. With the 145 came also a Service Manual and a User Manual, valid for both 145 and 245.
