The Aging Individual: Physical and Psychological ...

The word "Aging" and "Old Age" are highly subjective. "Aging" is defined as the time from birth to the present for a living individual, as measured in specific units (John Anne). The meaning of old and aging depend to a great extent on how old the speaker is and that person's experiences. The process of aging is a complex one that can be described chronologically, physiologically, and functionally.

The Aging Process Health And Social Care Essay

People aging with physical impairment are a group of individuals who will likely have had different life experiences with disability than those older adults who have not lived long term with physical impairment or who did not have physical impairments earlier in life.
