Active geysers on Triton spew nitrogen gas, making this moon one of the known active worlds in the outer solar system. A subsurface ocean at Triton is considered possible but is unconfirmed. Volcanic features and fractures mark its cold, icy surface, likely results of past tidal heating.

Ocean Worlds Resources - NASA Solar System Exploration

In February 2001, the largest recorded volcanic eruptions in the solar system occurred on Io. Europa , the smallest of Jupiter's Galilean moons , also appears to have an active volcanic system, except that its volcanic activity is entirely in the form of water, which freezes into ice on the frigid surface.

Volcano - Wikipedia

The largest known volcano in the solar system is actually on the planet Mars. Its name is "Olympus Mons" and it towers some 27 kilometers above the planet's surface. This giant mountain is a shield volcano. If it existed on Earth, it would tower over Mount Everest (the tallest mountain on our planet).
