Color Guide For Us Stamps

The colors of postage stamps are at once obvious, and among the most difficult areas of philately. Different denominations of stamps have been printed in different colors since the very beginning; as with their successors, postal clerks could distinguish the Penny Black and Two pence blue more quickly by color than by reading the value, and the practice generally continues today. In practice, the actual color of a stamp may vary, and while collectors will pay high prices for rare shades, it may Specialized Color Guides for US Stamps by Richard M. Morris Covers the 3¢ 1851-57, 3¢ 1861-68, 2¢ 1890 and 2¢ 1895-1903, The two editions are quite similar as to color identification however the text differs. We prefer the original edition as the chips are mounted on a non-surfaced paper and you do not get the glare of the Scott edition.

Red, blue, yellow, purple, orange, green, brown, gray, black, and white. I also support federal legislation to specify a standard off-white ceiling color. You can paint your ceiling any color you want, but if it's going to be off-white, it HAS to be the specified color.

Stamporama Discussions: Do you use a stamp colour key?

The dull red variety of the Type I stamp, with its inner framelines not recut (Scott 11) was not issued until March 1855. Type II of the dull red variety (11A) was released between 1851 and 1855, depending upon the plate used to produce the stamps. So, this tells us that Type I imperforate stamps canceled before March 1855 are orange brown.
