The Golden Spruce A True

The Golden Spruce is a wonderful tale of early British Columbia told with leavening of environmentalism. There was a spurious variant of the local huge spruce trees in British Columbia that was actually gold in color. It stood in an area of many islands and cliffs on the British Columbia Sea Coast. This is the life story of the man who cut it down.

The Golden Spruce: A True Story of Myth, Madness, and ...

The golden spruce was a tall tree venerated by the Haida, a Canadian First Nation tribe living on the Queen Charlotte Islands. The shimmering golden color was formed by a genetic mutation. This 300 year old Sitka Spruce thrived because reflected light from the water of the Yukoun River reached its inner green needles, allowing photosynthesis to occur.
