Some people credit our book, Get That Freak: Homophobia and Transphobia in High Schools, with being timely, but the impact of HTP bullying has a long history, leading at times to dropping out of school, not joining particular sports teams or other extracurricular programs because students fear being labelled as “effeminate” or “butch”, for example. Along with the harms of HTP bullying, though, we must consider how many young people are resilient, coping with personal harassment ...

Homophobia in the School Booklist

The power of homophobia is such that homosexual individuals often feel culturally compelled to misrepresent their sexuality (something known as being “in the closet”) in order to avoid social stigma. However, homophobia also impacts heterosexuals, as it is impossible to definitively prove one’s heterosexuality. Accordingly, heterosexuals and homosexuals wishing to be thought heterosexual are compelled to avoid associating with anything coded as homosexual.
