Therefore beginning a Mathematics degree is always a shock. We ease the transition for you by taking the first year gently, but it's still easy to fall at any stage into the trap of doing too little work. Work at those exercises! It is essential to back up every hour of lecture time with at least one hour of private study on the same topic. (Your social or sporting life is important too - nobody denies that - but if you don't limit those pleasant activities, expect only a third-class degree.)
