Rough sketches of couples, for instance, meld into single shapes, attesting to Kandinsky's belief that the idea of the Garden of Love could be expressed without explicit representation of the physical world. Ultimately, Kandinsky wanted his art to be able to communicate on its own terms, independent of naturalistic signs.

Art: The Garden of Love (Improvisation Number 27 ...

In his writings, published in Munich by Verlag Albert Langen in 1926, Kandinsky analyzed the geometrical elements which make up every painting—the point and the line. He called the physical support and the material surface on which the artist draws or paints the basic plane , or BP. [49]
