The latest attempt is made by Jeremy Black, building on previous works from 1991 (A Military Revolution? Military Change and European Society, 1550-1800) and 1994 (European Warfare, 1660-1815). The first of these addressed warfare in Europe, the second European warfare at home and overseas; both concluded that the Military Revolution, as originally conceptualised, could not possibly have occurred between 1560 and 1660, but instead took place at some point after 1660 and before 1720.
